PLAN TO ANNUL 80-CENT GAS WOMAN FEARED BY LAW IS EXPOSED AT HEARING ON WICKS BILL AT ALBANY

Miss Loeb Declares to Senators.

Objectal From a Staff Correspondent of The ALBANY, March 22.- A hearing was held late yesterday afternoon before the Public Hervice Committee of the Senate on the Wicks Bill, which is designed to nullify the 80-cent gas statute, passed in 1906 through the before the Public Service Commisefforts of The Evening World, as sion for five years; yet it was not well as an amendment which ex- until the Legislature acted that the tended the 80-cent rate to the 30th people of that district secured relief and 31st Wards of Brooklyn.

"Certainly the gas companies do not seek to lower the rate when come here to the Legislature with such a bill as this," said Sophie Irene Loeb of The Evening World staff, who appeared against the meas-

"The aim, pure and simple, is to try and get a higher rate for gas. What this would mean to thousands of consumers cannot be estimated. By such activities as this the public utilities of New York show the least public spirit of any in the United States.

"According to their own advertisements the large gas companies never had such a gigantic gas consumption as the past winter, and this must necessarily have increased their gross profits. Yet in the face of this they come ere and ask you to set aside a statute that has been upheld by all the courts, and place uder the Public Service Commission, already overlened with subway and other ocal problems this matter of new rates, which the people would have to pay pending indefinite reviews by

RATE-MAKING HISTORY. "The history of rate cases before the Public Service Commission certainly does not warrant such a procedure as would eliminate the present statute and place the matter of rate accordingly. making with the Public Service Commission, to the detriment of all conumers," she asserted.

"Why don't the companies try the usual method before the courts if their books before a tribunal that tion. can review them, rather than seek to formly upheld?" she asked.

"But they know full well the courts have held that the profit of any one year could not determine the proper return of a comnean: that oublic utilities must needs calculate the lean years in connection with the prosperous ones," Miss Loeb told the committee, "and they know too that justice would demand that gas companies share the burden of war conditions and be satisfied with less profit at such times.

"This seeking to nullify the 80-cent Gas Bill and place the matter in the Public Service Commission is a mere subterfuge, in view of past history in rate cases before that body,"

She cited the case of the 30th and list Wards of Brooklyn which was from the high rates charged. This The Wicks Bill would ignore the fight was long championed by The picion of Miss McDougal by the evi-Evening World, which finally secured

It was this very rate case that, dragging along for so many years, was the basis of actions which cleaned out the preceding Public Service Commission; and the present commission, realizing that if it undertook to set a rate another court review might be sought by the vested interests, which would continue the delay, strongly urged the Legislature to extend the 80-cent rate to Brooklyn.

Miss Loob presented at length a omparison on the attitude taken by the gas companies of New York City and those of Chicago.

"Last June the City of Chicago passed a measure lowering the rates and prescribing a method of consumers' dividends, so that after the companies have bad a fair rate of reurn the increased earnings go back to the people in a definitely determined system whereby the company shares its prosperity with the consumers," she said.

"The City of Chicago before this charged the same rate as New York, 80 cents per, 1,000 cubic feet," she explained, "and had the same standard, 22 candle power.

PROFIT TO COMPANIES IN CHANGE OF STANDARD.

"In its long campaign of advertising the People's Gas Light and Coke Company of Chicago urged its consumers to agree to a change to the British thermal unit standard. and it offered to reduce the rates

"Thus the Chicago company took its patrons into its confidence and a graduated scale of rates was agreed upon. These range from 70 cents per 1,000 feet after the first 350 cubic they want to claim that they are not feet used to 40 cents per 1,000 feet, making money? Why not present according to the volume of consump-

"Hy a recent order of the commisdon the companies may British thermal unit of 585 B. T. Us "The average of gas over a period of six months served to consumers in New York under the candle power standard has been 659 H. T. Us.

"It would seem on the face of this that already the companies have a tremendous advantage, and the rates might be considered to have been raised right now," said Miss Loob, 'especially since it costs less to make this standard of gas than it does the twenty-two candle power, besides securing the by-products of toluol and benzein for war purposes."

With this pending proposition already advantageous to the companies. Miss Loeb scored the proposed legislation as plainly an effort to secure higher rates regardless of the recent tests and resulting optional orders of the Public Service Commission

She also pointed out that if the present rates are confiscatory, the gas companies have recourse to the courts, where every valuation could be presented and the past profits fairly shown.

The gas companies were repre-sented by their attorneys. POOLING OF FUEL OIL TO BE ORDERED SOON

Artificial Shortage Produced by Removal of Tank Steamers From Coastwise Traffic.

WASHINGTON, March 22 - Pooling of fuel oil to meet essential needs will be ordered by the Fuel Administration shortly, it was learned to-day. Short age of transportation facilities due to re-moval of 60 per cent, of the tank steammoval of 50 per cent, of the tank steamers from coastwise oil traffic has preduced artificial shortages of fuel oil in Eastern manufacturing districts, making necessary radical action to insure conilitiation of war activities.

Tank care are being diverted from the Middle West to the Southeast to relieve the stringency created by withdrawal of tank steamers. Mark Requa, oil director, has completed regulations will be announced officially this week it was expected. Production has increased to keep pace with extra demands, and no oil shortage is feared.
